

June 8, 2011

Welcome to the 2011 Colorado Construction Career Days (CCCD) and it's 2011 Construction Careers in Colorado annual magazine. We are proud to say, the magazine is widely used by the Schools throughout the state, by the State Workforce Centers, the Colleges and others as a career resource guide. It is designed it to be a very convenient and informative Resource Guide for youth and adults to explore architecture, engineering, construction and energy. This year the magazine will be featured in the ENR magazine in the July/August 2011 and available to view on the ENR website plus available electronically on the CCCD website.

Each year the Colorado Construction Career Days event brings students, throughout the state, to experience "hands on" activities representing the variety of careers within the construction. But with the Colorado Construction Career Days magazine it doesn't end there. This magazine is a follow-up to the event to serve as source of information for educators, students and the public for more details and descriptions into the careers. It makes it convenient to delve into the details of careers in construction as we strive to get the word out.

Take the opportunity to support the event and to promote your company, training and architecture, engineering, construction and energy careers through advertising. The advertising directly supports the CCCD event.

Beside being in the ENR magazine, the Construction Careers in Colorado annual magazine, including past issues, can be found on the CCCD website, www.coloradoconstructioncareerdays.com, to look at it electronically or pass it on to serve as a resource to others. Our thanks to McGraw-Hill Construction for their generous time and energy to put the publication together as another service to the industry to build our future workforce.

Lee Blum and Terry Kish
Co-Chairs,
Colorado Construction Career Days